

Fan Fiction on the Web: By Janet Smith

Austen for Beginners (<http://www.austen-beginners.com/fanfiction.shtml>)

It provides basic definitions and links to virtually all other Jane Austen fan fiction sites, including the following:

Derbyshire Writers Guild: <http://www.austen.com/derby/>

All stories here are rated PG-13 or below, suitable for readers of all ages

Firthness: <http://www.firthness.com/>
(requires login, over-18s only)

Hyacinth Gardens: <http://www.hyacinthgardens.com/garden/>
(requires login, over-18s only)

A Happier Alternative: <http://www.meryton.com/aha/index.php>
(requires login)

The Meryton Assembly: <http://meryton.com/>

Jane Austen Regency Fanfiction Index: <http://www.austen-beginners.com/jaffindex.shtml>

Mrs Darcy's Story Site: <http://www.mrsdarcy.com/>

Pen & Ink: <http://www.penandink.thehiddentower.net/>

Bennet Girls: <http://www.bennetgirls.com/index.html>

Longbourn Loungers: <http://lifeandstuff.com/longbournloungers/>

Happily Ever After: <http://lifeandstuff.com/happilyeverafter/>

50 Miles of Good Road: <http://scotch-and-sirens.waw.pl/index.php>

Jane Austen's Land of Ahhhs: <http://www.ahhhs.net/>

Jane Austen: A Fanfiction Guide on Squidoo : <http://www.squidoo.com/janeaustenfanfiction>

The Republic of Pemberley also provides the Bits of Ivory board, which provides an archive of some of the many hundreds of stories that were posted there over the years. This board can be found at <http://www.pemberley.com/derby/boiarchive.html>.

My collection of short stories, Intimations of Austen, can be purchased from Lulu.com at <http://stores.lulu.com/store.php?fAcctID=2319898> or you can wait until it's at Amazon, or you can visit my website (www.janegs.com) and read the stories for free...for a little while longer. Also, I am currently blogging my reading of The Democratic Genre: Fan Fiction in a literary context by Sheenagh Pugh, which I mentioned at the beginning of this paper on my blog at <http://janegs.blogspot.com/>. On the blog, I provide links to all of the Austen fan fiction stories that Pugh mentions in her book, and they all sound really good!